

What is a Community Fire Unit?

A Community Fire Unit (CFU) is a team of local residents living in urban areas close to bushland who are supported by Fire & Rescue NSW (FRNSW) to enhance their safety and resilience to bushfires.

By becoming a CFU member you will receive training in personal and property preparation, and your CFU team will receive a trailer of basic fire fighting equipment to help defend your homes if you decide to stay during a bushfire.

As a volunteer CFU member you do not fight fires. CFUs add to NSW fire service resources through property preparation and protection.

Leaving early is always the safety option during a bushfire.

Do you live near the bush?

Community Fire Units

Learn skills to better prepare and increase your resilience to bushfires and other emergencies

Learn how to operate basic firefighting equipment to protect your property

Learn about activities that reduce the impact of bushfires in your community

Bushfires are an inevitable part of the Australian landscape.

If you live in an urban area near bushland, your home could be impacted by a bushfire.

You and your neighbours can build your resilience to bushfires by becoming Community Fire Unit (CFU) members.

You have an active part to play

Living near bushland comes with a risk.

While fire and emergency service agencies will do everything in their capacity to manage a bushfire, you also have an active part to play in preparing and protecting your home.

Your survival and safety depends on your preparation and the decisions you make.

You need to PREPARE your property and be ready to ACT in the event of a bushfire in order to SURVIVE.

Why should you join?

The CFU program will help you and your family become emotionally and physically prepared for the threat of bushfire.

As a volunteer CFU member you will learn how to prepare yourself, your family and your home ahead of the bushfire season, and make informed decisions about whether to leave early or stay and defend your property when bushfires threaten.

Being a CFU member is about preparation, prevention and protection from bushfires.

Make informed decisions about whether to stay and defend your property or leave early

Work with your neighbours to prepare your properties and bushfire survival plans

“ Being part of our local CFU makes us confident - having the training and knowing we can handle the equipment in the event of a bushfire or other emergencies. ”
